

Find spectrum allocations in New Zealand?

Spectrum Allocation In New Zealand

Efficient use of the radio spectrum resource to provide safety of life, telecommunications, broadcasting and other services is essential to the functioning of New Zealand economy. The current spectrum allocation in New Zealand is in line with Government policy and directives as well as international and technical standards.

The chart below illustrates in a simplified form the significant primary radio frequency band usage in New Zealand:

Full size image and Printable version of ["Radio Spectrum Allocations in New Zealand" \[270 kB PDF\]](#) (instructions for obtaining the Adobe Acrobat viewer)

The online Register of Radio Frequencies can be searched to find more detailed information about particular usage within a location or a frequency range.